If you know what to look for, your credit report can be a powerful tool in boosting your credit score and protecting you against identity theft.

1 PERSONAL INFORMATION

Review your personal information and make sure it is up-to-date.

2 CONSUMER STATEMENT

If something on your credit report is in the process of being disputed (like an error or activity related to identity theft), your explanation of the issue appears here.

3 ACCOUNT HISTORY

Go over this section carefully. Some credit bureaus use symbols or codes to indicate the status of your account (we've included some common examples). Keep an eye out for:

- Accounts that aren't yours
- Closed accounts listed as open (and vice versa)
- Errors in your account history (like late payments)
- A missing notice of dispute (there should be a record of any errors you've reported in your account history)
- Negative activity that's more than seven years old

4 INQUIRIES

Here you can see which lenders and companies have pulled up your credit report. Contact any companies that accessed your report without your permission.

5 FRAUD ALERT

If you suspect that you're a victim of identity theft, you can request a fraud alert. This requires lenders to verify ID before extending any credit in your name.
